Stephanie E. Wilson-Coleman

Founder & CEO, The Champagne Connection, Inc.

TV Show Host, Author, Empowerment Strategist, Motivational Speaker

Everybody has a story. But not everyone has a story to tell. Stephanie E. Wilson-Coleman's life narrative is a testament that anyone can have a story worth telling.

Like every hero, Stephanie Wilson-Coleman, the Empowerment Doctor, was born out of necessity. Her story is filled with conflict, villains, roadblocks, moral dilemmas and spiritual awakenings.

Stephanie's story began in Little Rock, Arkansas, where she graduated at the top of her class at the historic Little Rock Central High School. This she managed to do despite becoming a mother at 15 and experiencing sexual abuse and molestation. In 1996, Stephanie, a victim of corporate downsizing, was left in financial ruin, which resulted in being temporarily homeless.

With triumph, trials come — any good story has these elements. But the story gets better.

The same drive that led her to complete high school with honors, led Stephanie to earn her bachelor's degree from the University of Arkansas and cinch a MBA from the University of Chicago. She even studied economics and finance in Singapore and Barcelona, Spain.

Today, through the organization she founded, The Champagne Connection, Inc., Stephanie helps others to complete their stories by helping them to conquer fear and to learn to love themselves — just as she did. She possesses a sincere desire to help others to understand that their dreams have the power to produce successful, prosperous lives.

Exhorting others to “live the life you imagine,” Stephanie's The Champagne Connection teaches people how to resolve conflicts, achieve goals, boost self-esteem, build confidence and create financial prosperity. Known as “The Empowerment Doctor,” Stephanie shares an inspirational and life-changing message through her company's workshops, seminars, books, CDs, videos and other speaking engagements.

She is also the author of Amazon.com's highly popular books “Be Sure You Dance”, “Is Anybody Listening: A Journey to Wholeness” and “Embracing Life's Lessons: Journey to Inner Peace and Tranquility.”

She received Phi Beta Sigma Crescent Moon Award and the Minnie Riperton Humanitarian Award in 2013, the Dyvine Destiny Phenomenal Woman Award in 2012, the Chicago Defender's Women of Excellence Award and The Verizon Hometown Heroes Award in 2011 and The Black Pearl Award in 2005 for her outstanding contributions to the community. She is actively involved with homeless shelters, at risk youth, teenage mothers and victims of domestic violence.

Stephanie wants the world to know: We can't always control how our story starts, but we can write ourselves a better ending — even a happy one. It's not over until you say it is; Let the God times roll.
